This simple and colorful presentation of warm-weather fruits and vegetables is sure to harvest plenty of interest from little nature lovers as they compare, contrast, and hunt for visual clues.

Description:

Miguel is throwing a party at his community garden for all of his friends, and his treats won't be the same without his sunflowers. He's searched and searched, but the community garden has lots of plants and Miguel needs our help to identify them. What do we know about sunflowers? They're tall with petals and leaves—and, hold on, is that a sunflower? No, that's an artichoke. Where, oh, where could those sunflowers be? Can you help Miguel find them in time for his party?
